COVER STORY

The peregrine falcon normally prefers the heights of a high cliff for nesting far removed from a busy city centre. However, a remarkable coincidence occurred during the summer of 1983, when two pairs of the rare peregrines decided to nest high atop AGT buildings in the downtown core of Edmonton and Calgary. The busy summer of the Edmonton peregrine family is chronicled through a series of photos courtesy of the "Edmonton Journal".

The "AGT Falcons" are two of six known pairs of peregrines to have nested outside captivity in Alberta. During their AGT summer, the falcons were monitored by Alberta Fish and Wildlife biologists who are working with the Canadian Wildlife Service and other organizations to help preserve the peregrine falcon.
